Educational Programs: All: Academic program coordination

For each major in a degree program, the institution assigns responsibility for program coordination, as well as for curriculum development and review, to persons academically qualified in the field. In those degree programs for which the institution does not identify a major, this requirement applies to a curricular area or concentration. (Comprehensive Standard 3.4.11)

Narrative

The University of South Carolina (USC) assigns the primary responsibility for program coordination, curriculum development and curriculum review within each college or school to the department chair or program director, who normally holds the terminal degree in the discipline. According to the USC Faculty Manual:

Department chairs are appointed by the dean of a school or college and confirmed by the president and the provost. The chair has a responsibility to departmental faculty in matters relating to teaching and research and is responsible also to the dean of the college and other officers of the university for implementing university policies as they apply to the affairs of the department. The department chair is responsible for the general conduct of departmental affairs and reports to the dean of the college or school. The chair is responsible for appointments and non-reappointments, promotions and tenure (except as delegated to the faculty in The Faculty Manual), resource allocation, and all other matters relative to the successful implementation of the department's educational and scholarly objectives in accordance with university policies. The chair will consult with and seek the advice of appropriate committees of the faculty with respect to educational policy and departmental governance.

The selection of department chairs is governed by ACAF 1.24, "Selection of Department Chairs." Given the large size of many departments and programs, the chair or director often delegates curricular oversight duties to experienced faculty undergraduate and graduate directors, sometimes called program coordinators. Their academic program coordinating role is outlined in ACAF 1.25, "Academic Program Coordinators for Degree Programs and/or Departments". A list of all academic administrators at the University, including undergraduate faculty program directors and directors of graduate programs, is appended to this Standard. The qualifications for all faculty in department chair, program director, undergraduate director and graduate director positions are indicated in the attached Program Coordinator Director table.

Since before the last reaccreditation in 2011, the Academic Program Liaison (APL) Committee, comprising representatives from each of the colleges, schools and senior campuses of the University, has served as an additional level of quality control on program coordination. The APLs are tasked with monitoring the progress of program proposals in their respective units, and ensuring that they move expeditiously according to the submission cycle timelines. Nearly all of the APLs are faculty, and they work closely with the faculty chairs and undergraduate and graduate program directors to help them accomplish their curricular coordination duties. The process of curriculum development and review is governed by Academic Affairs (ACAF 2.00), "Creation and Revision of Academic Programs," and ACA 2.03, "Creation and Revision of Academic Courses". These policies identify the department chair or program director as the individual with primary responsibility for approving new or revised programs and curricula at the unit level, and for transmitting program proposals to the campus, college or school level for approval. Faculty undergraduate and graduate program directors are expected to play a role in shepherding proposals through the faculty governance process.

Regional Palmetto College Campuses

The four regional campuses of USC (USC Lancaster, USC Union, USC Sumter, and USC Salkehatchie) fall under the authority of the Columbia campus and reside in a central administrative unit known as Palmetto College, headed by a Chancellor and Associate Provost/Dean. Resultantly, these campuses are referred to as regional Palmetto College campuses. The administrative unit (see Organizational Chart) also houses USC's Extended University, which offers undergraduate credit programs and courses at Ft. Jackson and provides guidance and support for the delivery of the University's undergraduate online degree completion programs. Information for officers holding key functions at all locations may be accessed in the Supporting Documentation for all campuses.
